

YELLOW SPRINGS CONSIDERS "WHITE WAY" LIGHTING PLAN

The Yellow Springs village board of public affairs has under consideration the installation of new street lights in the business section at a cost of $4,000. It is disclosed by C. H. Ellis, clerk of the board.

As a preliminary step, W. G. Kefauver, street lighting expert from the Cincinnati office of the General Electric Co., recently visited the village, conducted a survey and later submitted a report to Mr. Ellis, recommending the installation of thirty novolux ornamental street lighting units.

The lights would have alabaster, rippled globes and alabaster, conical. In each lighting unit, 400 candle power, 6.6 amperes high efficiency lamps are used. The representative declared the rippled glass tends to diffuse the light and at the same time gives a sparkle and lively appearance to the unit when lighted and is pleasing to the eye.

It was recommended that the units be mounted at a height of twelve feet, six inches to the center of the light, and that standards be installed from twelve to eighteen inches from the curb in order to clear auto fenders.

This circuit of lights would be operated from one RP station type automatic constant current transformer. The transformer to be installed would take care of three times the number of lights in the original installation, or about 100 altogether. The Sauter time switch now used at the sub-station would continue in use for the new circuit.

Units would be placed on both sides of the street, 150 feet apart, staggered, meaning that there would be one light for every line of feet of street in the business district. In the two residence blocks included, a spacing of 20 feet staggered would be used. It deemed necessary, 600 candle power lamps may be used in the same unit with no added equipment.

The foundations of the units will be concrete. According to the engineer's estimate, the cost of the

CAMPAIGN AGAINST BARBERRY TO START AT YELLOW SPRINGS

Yellow Springs has been selected as the office for the barberry eradication campaign now being waged by the United States Department of Agriculture, due to the favorable publicity received on research work accomplished as an autonomous course at Antioch College by John Carton, senior student.

The Yellow Springs office, under Carton, will conduct an investigation into the best medium for disseminating information among farmers of the middle west in an effort to prevent wheat rust.

Under the general direction of John L. Snook, professor of industrial research at Antioch, Carton has been co-operating with W. F. Ready, state leader for Michigan in the wheat rust campaign, and has obtained what is believed to be valuable preliminary data for an advertising campaign for the Michigan committee.

Announcement of the intention to establish this office was made following a recent visit to Antioch by Reddy and D. R. Fletcher, of Minnesota, secretary of the conference for prevention of grain rust.

These leaders conferred with Carton and Snook and on the basis of findings, later made public the appointment of Carton to head the personnel of the local office. He will have as his assistant, a "C" student of Antioch, who has not been selected.

Mr. and Mrs. Cain have resided in Xenia fifteen years and previous to moving here lived in Clark County a number of years.

She leaves her husband and three sons: Frederick E. Frank J. and James L., all at home; two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Kyne, Spring Valley and Mrs. Julia Yeager, Cincinnati, and two brothers, Thomas Andrews, near Cedarville and John Andrews, near Yellow Springs.

Mrs. Cain was a member of St. Bridget Church. Funeral services will be held at the church Friday morning at 10 o'clock with burial in the Catholic cemetery.

Troop 45, B. S. A., will meet at the cabin Friday at 7:30 p. m., when reports on the contest will be made. Each boy is asked to bring a stick of wood. Let each patrol have a full attendance.

WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it. The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the druggist can assure you is made with CASCARET. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascaraize the bowels? They will usually function well for several days. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time. Until you don't feel the need of them.

So, the only habit you get from cascara is that of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repeat on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative; and the familiar little candy cascaret is doubtless its ideal form. Children beg for these tasty tablets, and many men and women wouldn't think of taking ANYTHING else for the purpose. And EVERY druggist has them. —Ad—

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

By JEAN MACON

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening hair, eyebrows and faded hair is a standard mother's recipe, and folks are again turning to it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite desirable, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mossy mixing at home. An easy, ready-made product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" it is very popular because nobody can disagree it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

While it is true that at first we can install but a third of the eventual "white way" lights at this time, we have on hand a surplus of funds which may well be used for this, as there is no other demand for it. Thus we will have begun one more improvement which cannot possibly be anything but an added asset to the village.

Now that the waterworks contracts have been let, our board will probably act on the "white way" recommendation at its next meeting.

COURT OF APPEALS UPHOLDS ALLEGED ABDUCTOR'S CASE

The Greene County Court of Appeals, in a decision rendered Tuesday, upheld the conviction and sentence of Gus Clements, Lima, O., in Common Pleas Court on a charge of abducting a sixteen-year-old girl from the O. S. and S. O. Home.

Clements based his appeal on a plea of a former conviction of substantially the same offense, in that he was previously charged with contributing to the delinquency of the same Home pupil.

The appellate court held that the offense of contributing to the delinquency of the girl is totally different from the charge of abducting her from the institution where she was legally committed.

It was also contended by Attorney F. L. Johnson, defense counsel, that the evidence is insufficient to show that she was abducted. But in the opinion of the higher court the evidence is sufficient to justify the verdict according to the decision.

ADMINISTRATION'S FARM RELIEF PLAN EXPLAINED BY FESS

U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs, was the principal speaker on the Wednesday program of Farmers' Week at Ohio State University. The administration's plan for relieving the morbid state of agriculture was his subject.

If farmers in Ohio produced their own feeding cattle, enough land might be released from crop production to materially affect the prices of farm crops in this state, was the opinion of J. E. Drake, manager of White Hall Farm, Yellow Springs, expressed in a talk at Tuesday's session.

"The farm problem lies in the disparity between what the farmer must pay for the things he buys and what he receives for the things he sells," said Senator Fess. "If his dollar would buy as much as the non-agricultural dollar buys, he would not complain. He is not especially concerned whether the price of the thing he buys comes down or the price of the thing he sells goes up. This disparity can be accounted for."

"Non-agricultural prices are stabilized by regulation of production through management of the producers. Under modern methods of industry, where communication and transportation permit a policy of hand from mouth buying, production is held within the demands of consumption. When it appears production is carried over storage instead of consumption, by allowing production to outrun the demands for future delivery, the order goes out to slow down on production. This protection against over-production stabilizes price, and avoids the dangerous fluctuation in the price current."

Labor, the chief element of cost in manufacturing, is highly organized to maintain a high wage scale. This places the stabilized price on a high level, to the disadvantage of agricultural purchasers. This price will not decline materially except as through efficiency greater production per laborer is assured with, out increasing cost, but on the other hand it will decrease the cost of the article, and reduce wages, which will result in increased consumption by reducing the cost of living—a sound principle of economy.

"The scale of wages will not be greatly reduced, if at all, since a reasonably high wage scale is sound economy in that it insures purchasing power, the desideratum of prosperity. Large sales and small margins of profit in modern industry's slogan rather than few sales and large margins. The chief element of consumptive power is labor steadily employed at a reasonably high wage scale."

"From 1921 to the present day, the price of non-agriculture has been declining, while the price of agriculture has been increasing. The two are gradually approaching parity, but agriculture is still in a position of disadvantage. The problem is to bring up the price of agriculture without increasing unnecessarily the cost of living."

"Various methods have been proposed. The best remedy and the logical one, if it can be materialized, is to increase the demand on the one hand and regulate the supply on the other. If we could apply the remedy employed by industry, our problem is solved. From the nature of agriculture, the demand can not be increased as in the case of non-agriculture; neither can the supply be regulated, because of elements which will not respond to management."

"The remedy to be effectual must be both practical and constitutional, and to be safe it must be economically sound, else it may be worse than the disease it is assigned to cure. A complete remedy will involve many elements, such as the reduction in the cost of production, the protection against losses in marketing, a more careful use of the tillable acreage, closer co-operation between the farmer and other groups of citizens to restrain the tendencies to increase state and local expenditures and consequent higher taxes. There should be better machinery for credit to the farmer so as to utilize the income from a credit system wherever and whenever possible a revision of the rate structure to give possible relief in the cost of transportation. All these elements should be considered in attempting to work out a sound remedy."

"The one specific field of remedial legislation is that of marketing. Our immediate need is to turn a buyer's market into a seller's market. So long as the farmer is helpless to say what he will take, but must depend upon the buyer as to what he will give, the farmer is without adequate remedy. His necessities, which compel him to throw upon the market at one time the entire harvest breaks the price and he loses the advantage of a seller's market. If a plan can be devised to insure him needed cash to care for inevitable expense, such as interest, taxes, etc., without glutting the market by unloading the entire harvest, the problem would largely be solved."

"To this end it has been strongly recommended that there should be established a Federal Farm Board consisting of a small number, appointed by the president, to assist farmers and organizations in the production and marketing of crops."

"The very important department of agriculture with its admirable facilities should be utilized in its competent agencies for securing important and necessary information. Throughout the agricultural areas there should be established advisory organizations such as now are created in industry to co-operate with the board to advise and assemble needed information on production and marketing."

"Stabilization corporations should be created to work with the board. It has been thought wise to have the government participate in these corporations as a minority stockholder, to insure confidence in their stability."

"It has also been urged that the working capital should be supplied by the government, but made available by private banking under governmental control such as the intermediate credit banks. These stabilizing corporations should represent the principle of co-operation where farm organizations and private business organizations can co-operate with the government through the Farm Board, each supplying a portion of the working capital, and all to be under the supervision of the government. This organization would doubtless in time be able to

WHEN YOUR HAND GOES TO YOUR HEART

Difficulty in breathing and heart palpitation are symptoms of high blood pressure, which may cut off life suddenly. Our modern habits of life are responsible, putting too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver.

When the liver becomes "limp" or sluggish it fails to cleanse the blood of the toxic poisons formed in food waste. The poisons then permeate the system, affecting stomach, kidneys, heart and blood pressure.

The liver occasionally needs a little help, and there's nothing better for this, as medical men today know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a great natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to red health. Diocel tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. A few bring impressive results. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Diocel. They cost less than 2c each at druggists.

GOOD DIGESTION NOT MATTER OF LUCK

End Indigestion without Dieting

To be free from indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulence, acidity, wind, brash, heartburn or other distressing stomach "upsets," is not a matter of luck but just a matter of care. But mark you, not care in diet either, for even the greatest stomach sufferers can eat what they fancy without disagreeable after-effects if they will only take a little "Pape's Diapiespin" to make things right with their stomachs.

Nearly all digestive trouble is due to excess acid which accumulates in the stomach causing food to ferment and painful gases to form. By instantly neutralizing this harmful acid "Pape's Diapiespin" brings prompt relief and restores to normal the disturbed digestive processes, as well as soothing, healing and strengthening the acid-weakened stomach lining.

Get a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapiespin" from your druggist today and be free from the miseries of indigestion for good and all.

Mrs. Preston Says She Has Proved The Value of Father John's Medicine

Graduate Nurse Has Used It For Colds And To Build New Health And Strength

Mrs. Helen G. Preston, who conducts the Boston Employment Agency at 56 Melrose St., Boston, has proved the value of FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE, not only in her own family but in dealing with many of those who come to her for help and guidance. No praise could be stronger than her own letter, which is in part as follows:

"For eighteen years I have owned and managed an employment agency in Boston and many thousands have applied to me for positions. Some of these are in poor physical condition either through neglected colds or being generally run down as a result of laborious work or worry or serious illness."

From my previous experience as a graduate nurse, I always recommend FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE to such persons and as a result many who are not strong enough to do hard work so built up their health and strength that I was able to place them without much difficulty. Mothers to whom I have recommended it report that their children gained weight and are stronger than ever before."

I learned of the merits of FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE through personal experience. I have always used it myself and it restored my son to health when he was in poor physical condition after his war service. This is why I so gladly recommend it to those who seek relief from colds or who need something to build up their failing strength. I have always found FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE the foremost medicine for colds and body building."

From the nature of agriculture, the demand can not be increased as in the case of non-agriculture; neither can the supply be regulated, because of elements which will not respond to management."

"The remedy to be effectual must be both practical and constitutional, and to be safe it must be economically sound, else it may be worse than the disease it is assigned to cure. A complete remedy will involve many elements, such as the reduction in the cost of production, the protection against losses in marketing, a more careful use of the tillable acreage, closer cooperation between the farmer and other groups of citizens to restrain the tendencies to increase state and local expenditures and consequent higher taxes. There should be better machinery for credit to the farmer so as to utilize the intermediate credit system, and wherever and whenever possible a

End Indigestion without Dieting

To be free from indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulence, acidity, water-brash, heartburn or other distressing stomach "upsets" is not a matter of luck but just a matter of care. But mark you, not care in diet either, for even the greatest stomach sufferer can eat what they fancy without disagreeable after-effects if they will only take a little "Pape's Diapiesin" to make things right with their stomachs.

Nearly all digestive trouble is due to excess acid which accumulates in the stomach causing food to ferment and painful gases to form. By instantly neutralizing this harmful acid "Pape's Diapiesin" brings prompt relief and restores to normal the disturbed digestive processes, as well as soothing, healing and strengthening the acid-weakened stomach lining.

revision of the rate structure to give possible relief in the cost of transportation. All these elements should be considered in attempting to work out a sound remedy.

"The one specific field of remedial legislation is that of marketing. Our immediate need is to turn a buyer's market into a seller's market. So long as the farmer is helpless to say what he will take, but must depend upon the buyer as to what he will give, the farmer is without adequate remedy. His necessities, which compel him to throw upon the market at one time the entire harvest breaks the price and he loses the advantage of a seller's market. If a plan can be devised to insure him needed cash to care for inevitable expense, such as interest, taxes, etc., without glutting the market by unloading the entire harvest, the problem would largely be solved."

"To this end it has been strongly recommended that there should be established a Federal Farm Board consisting of a small number, appointed by the president, to assist farmers and organizations in the production and marketing of crops."

"The very important department of agriculture with its admirable facilities, which, compiled in its competent agencies for securing important and necessary information. Throughout the agricultural areas there should be established advisory committees such as now are created in industry to cooperate with the board to advise and assemble needed information on production and marketing."

"Stabilization corporations should be created to work with the board. It has been thought wise to have the government participate in these corporations as a minority stockholder, to insure confidence in their stability."

"It has also been urged that the working capital should be supplied by the government, but made available by private banking under governmental control such as the intermediate credit banks. These stabilizing corporations should represent the principle of co-operation where farm organizations and private business organizations can cooperate with the government through the Farm Board, each supplying a portion of the working capital, and all to be under the supervision of the government. This organization would doubtless in time be able to

Difficulty in breathing and heart palpitation are symptoms of high blood pressure, which may cut off life suddenly. Our modern habits of life are responsible, putting too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver.

When the liver becomes "limp" or sluggish it fails to cleanse the blood of the toxic poisons formed in food waste. The poisons then permeate the system, affecting stomach, kidneys, heart and blood pressure.

The liver occasionally needs a little help, and there's nothing better for this, as medical men today know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a great natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to real health. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteful form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. A few bring impressive results. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol. They cost less than 2c each at druggists.

extend its price stabilizing influence to a partial regulation of production, by a better understanding of the supply and demand, as is done now in non-agricultural industry. It would also be in position to assist the farmer in a better use of his land, his machinery of production and marketing, his efforts to reduce costs and increase efficiency. In this way he would avoid the dangers incident to unregulated production, and escape the dangers of unsound methods of government price fixing, subsidies to foreign consumers, and government handling of agriculture at the frightful cost to the industry."

Mrs. Preston Says She Has Proved The Value of Father John's Medicine

Graduate Nurse Has Used It For Colds And To Build New Health And Strength

Mrs. Helen G. Preston, who conducted the Boston Employment Agency at 56 Melrose St., Boston, has proved the value of FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE, not only in her own family but in dealing with many of those who come to her for help and guidance. No praise could be stronger than her own letter, which is in part as follows:

"For eighteen years I have owned and managed an employment agency in Boston and many thousands have applied to me for positions. Some of these are in poor physical condition either through neglected colds or being generally run down as a result of laborious work or worry or serious illness."

"From my previous experience as a graduate nurse, I always recommend FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE to such persons and as a result many who are not strong enough to do hard work so built up their health and strength that I was able to place them without much difficulty. Mothers to whom I have recommended it report that their children gained weight and are stronger than ever before."

I learned of the merits of FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE through personal experience. I have always used it myself and it restored my son to health when he was in poor physical condition after his war service. This is why I so gladly recommend it to those who seek relief from colds or who need something to build up their failing strength. I have always found FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE the foremost medicine for colds and body building."

BOYS AND ADVENTURE

A picture was given of the boy heart of America a few days ago, when 682 boys of the public schools of Belleville, New Jersey, were asked who they would like to be if they had to be someone else than themselves. Of these boys, 363 said they would like to be Col. Lindbergh, while only 110 wanted to be President Coolidge, 66 wished to be Henry Ford, 27 Thomas A. Edison, and 12 General Pershing.

The ideals of boys undergo rapid changes. At first they are simple. Many boys used to dream of being railroad sectionmen, because they were giving control of a handcar which they could operate up and down the tracks and thus get away from home. But these boys would want an automobile or an airplane now.

Many boys used to dream of being Indian fighters. Since the Indian fighting business slowed down, they are ready to go in for anything that is novel and adventurous.

The performance of thrilling and daring feats looks more attractive to the average boy than great political or financial success. The boy world doesn't probably admire Lindy so much because of his wonderful poise of character and service to science, as because he has done things that take very rare courage.

This longing for adventure leads many boys to disregard the excellent advice of their parents, and strike off far from achieving anything worth doing, yet the adventurous spirit of youth sometimes leads it to do daredevil things that bring it to grief.

The boy who is longing for some great adventure would better take hold and see if he can conquer the little difficulties of every day life. After he masters them, it will be time enough for him to start out to bring the world to his feet.

It is in the capable direction of this adventurous spirit that the Boy Scout organization has distinguished itself, being of tremendous value in the lives of hundreds of thousands of youths.

KILLS HOPE OF NAVY LIMITATION

The decision of the United States to build its navy to a parity with that of Great Britain "definitely ends all serious discussions of limitations of armaments in Europe," in the opinion of Frank H. Simonds, noted war correspondent and authority on international affairs.

"The British advocacy of its great naval program based upon its requirements at Geneva and the American adoption of a vast naval construction program based on its conception of its own needs for security make it impossible for either American or British voices to urge land disarmament at Geneva," Mr. Simonds points out.

Hopes held for the success of gradual disarmament program of the League of Nations have been dissipated by the American plan, Mr. Simonds believes, because the contemplated weapon of the League, the blockade, would be ineffective against American shipping in any new conflict.

Although he expresses the opinion that "we are at the beginning of a long period of Anglo-American strain," Mr. Simonds sees no possibility of British-American war clouds forming as a result of the newly announced naval program. To the contrary, he says, the British, who until now have rested secure in the belief that their scattered possessions entitled them to naval supremacy, recognize American potential superiority and will rely upon diplomatic conciliation.

MAN, NOT JOB

Never make up your mind about a man because of the job he holds. All sorts of circumstances may account for his job. Harry Luft, New York strong man, can tear two thick telephone directories in pieces at the same time, and he has towed a two-tone automobile with his teeth. But his steady job is working in a millinery shop. A good man may have a poor job, temporarily, and have a good reason for it.

JUST FIGURES

Boy babies are worth $9,000 and girls $4,600. So says Dr. Louis L. Dublin, who figures statistics for a life insurance company. He says the preventable deaths of 120,000 babies each year in this country mean an annual loss of $750,000,000. Some figures are just figures. Sound in theory they mean little practically. Ask any father or mother whether the boy baby is worth $9,000 and the girl baby $4,600. What's the answer? There is no answer.

CAMELS AND MOTORS

The motor car has smoother over the camel tracks in the desert. It used to take 22 days from Damascus to Bagdad by camel. Now it takes 30 hours by automobile.

"Hey, where you think you're going?" shouts the young sheik behind the wheel.

The traveler can visit the remote parts of the earth with vastly more convenience than ever before—but with less thrill.

The land of adventure is fast being cut up into city lots all over the earth.

CHANGED WORLD

Church goes, after the Sunday morning service, may well give themselves to reactional sports like tennis and golf. So says Bishop Manning, of the Episcopal church. It's a changed world. No such talk issued from the pulpit when some folks you know were boys and girls. It's a more understanding world, too. We have all learned some few things. We have learned that a boy cannot be tied to the front porch on Sunday afternoon and forced to be good. He may be made to go through the motions of being good. Today's young people are smart. They have to be sold ideas, and those ideas must be honestly and sensibly presented. They are willing to accept a good thing if you can prove it's good.

OF A

New Yorker

—By—
BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—President Coolidge, according to a certain Broadway wisecracker, is going to change October 31st to "Halvetime," in honor of New York's own transatlantic flier.

One restaurant, member of a chain of eat-and-run establishments, gives away a packet of cigarettes with each meal. This custom has an undoubted attraction for the small clerk or stenographer who needs to count the pennies before ordering.

Variety reports that a little girl who had been to the big city was asked what New York was famous for, when she arrived back home. "For its speakies," the child is alleged to have said. And experts say that's no childish prattle, either.

There is in Greenwich Village an apartment house containing eight one-room homes for "indigent artists." The building is known roundabout as "Twin Peaks," and it was erected under the patronage of Mr. Otto Kahn for the benefit of poverty stricken painters or writers. Unfurnished, the flats rent for $70 a month, which is not cheap, according to certain standards, but according to the New York idea in that particular neighborhood, is at least reasonable. However, the ideal of the founder is not being entirely realized, since one person I know who lives at Twin Peaks is neither indigent nor an artist. He is a reporter on a tabloid and he makes expense account work for him.

The newspapers made quite a to-do about a new machine, the "sodamat," installed at 1517 Broadway. The contraption mixes any one of twelve different flavors before the customers' eyes, and then slides the drink out in a sanitary cup. All for a nickel.

Panorama of New York

The night watchman at the Majestic theatre, who complains about the four-pound lantern he carries, is strong man. Waiters at the big hotels are trained in the art of carving by being given practice dummies made of dough. Galoshes, I observe, have departed in favor of fur-topped boots. An out-of-town guest at a banquet at the Astor wisecracked thus: "I never had such delicious salt and pepper." A drunken acrobat, leaping about South Ferry street, last week, bit one of the policemen in pursuit. According to the classic adage, that must be news.

It appears that prohibition agents have finally procured a successful method of clamping down on night clubs. The device is one of ancient usage, having been used on stills in the south. Instead of raiding the place for violation of the prohibition act, Volstead's minions now come armed with a search-and-seizure warrant. In this way the offense consists in selling liquor on which no tax has been paid to the government. A pint of liquor on the premises is sufficient to secure such a conviction, and that same charge allows the government agents to seize every bit of property in the place.

When the Chez Morgan was raided in this way before New Year's eve, the officers tore down expensive drapes, wrecked furniture with axes, and in every way possible ruined the place. What's more, the law protects such action.

A few more such raids, each of which destroys enormously valuable furnishings, and the night clubs will indeed be forced to obey the Eighteenth amendment.

Driving through the Bronx from New York to Mamaroneck, I have stopped several times at small shops to ask for cigarettes when the latter were not on display. In every instance, the proprietor would gaze at me solemnly and then produce a packet from some nook out of view. Of course, city inspectors are continually on the lookout for unlicensed vendors of tobacco. Evidently I did not bear the suspicious stamp of the law's enforcer.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

One of the most famous merchants in the United States, seated at our table, chanced to remark that he has never owned an automobile.

As I am evidently the only man in the country who can afford an automobile and doesn't have one, I asked him to explain. "I'd rather use taxicabs," he said. "And have one less possession to bother about. All my life I have tried to keep my mind free from non-essentials. Even when I was a youngster, making $2 a week, I never counted my laundry. Perhaps I have lost a few dollars, or even a shirt or two, by not keeping more careful track of them. But I'm quite sure that I have made far more than the value of such trifles by confining my thoughts to problems of greater importance."

For an hour I sat on deck, listening to the widow of one of the most celebrated singers of recent years, talking about his wonderful traits at character. Somehow, it renewed my faith in humanity to hear a widow, already engaged to be married again, so frankly full of deepest admiration for the spouse that is gone.

GUILT EDGED SECURITIES?

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

What Constitutes a Basic Facial Treatment

When you come to a beauty salon, the first thing the operator does is to ask you to remove all clothing from around your neck and shoulders. Then she pils a towel around your bust so your will be protected against soiling from the cream, and so she will have perfect freedom to work well down your chest and back. Then she smooths back your hair and pins a towel around your head. It is turned under slightly at the edge, drawn firmly over your ears and pinned in back, taking care that no stray ends of hair are exposed on your temples or around your ears. When you are preparing for your home massage, it is a good idea to roll the ends of the towel up away from your neck and pin them neatly on top of your head. This also makes a neat and becoming head-dress in case anyone should drop in on you unexpectedly, or if members of your family are around.

The second step is the diagnosis of your skin, an examination of texture and of defects that should be remedied. This examination determines what kind of cream and lotions will be used. The first cream to be applied is the cleansing cream.

To apply the cream, dip your fingers in the jar and distribute the substance well on your forehead, cheeks and chin. By the very nature of its purpose you must use plenty of cleansing cream. Stating in its use is just like trying to wash in an insufficient supply of water—you simply will not get results. Work the cream into the skin of your face with sweeping circular movement all the way to your ears, even on the lobes of your ears. Stroke down on your neck, grasping the chin firmly in the palm of the hand, bringing the cream well down on the chest and back and out on your shoulders.

In removing cream, nothing is more thorough, dainty nor easily disposed of than thin, silky squares of cleansing tissue. They are used almost universally now instead of a towel or a bit of cloth. Follow the same general rules, up on the face and down on the neck, in removing cream as you did in applying it.

The next step is the application of a stimulating, skin clearing cream—one that animates and activates the circulation. Smooth on a thin film of such a cream and do not massage it. After ten or twenty minutes, remove it with cleansing tissues and apply your skin-tonic; one with astringent qualities, mild or stronger, depending on the texture of your skin. Most women prefer an astringent of a milky consistency, for it gives the skin a particularly fresh-looking surface and serves as a powder foundation, or oftentimes, even as a finish for the woman who does not want to use powder around the house. The treatment finishes of course, with the application of your powder and rouge.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS

Counting Children's Calories. Is it necessary to have a knowledge of the caloric value of foods to compute children's diets? No, if the child is normal weight and is gaining normally. In other words, if it is in perfect health. But if the child is overweight or underweight you must have this knowledge whether the condition is due to incorrect diet. (Of course a diet may be correct in the number of calories or total energy foods, but still be very incorrect in the contents of vitamins and mineral elements).

However, you should have a caloric knowledge of food anyway, because everybody should have a fundamental knowledge of dietics, and you can't have this unless you know caloric values. This knowledge is not difficult at all, because they are many servings that are approximately 100 Calories each. For instance, a full slice of bread, one-half inch thick, is 100 C. A pat of butter, equivalent to a level tablespoonful, is 100 C. A big egg is 100 C. (ordinary sized egg 75 to 80 C.) 5 ounces of whole milk is 100 C. A scant cup of oatmeal is 100 C. A big apple, or big orange, is 100 C. Most textbooks on dietetics give 100 C. lists of foods.

In yesterday's paper, I gave you Sherman's table of the caloric needs of children, and I called your attention to the fact that undernourished children and superactive children may need over twice the number of calories daily than the average child consumes. There is a daily fundamental diet from which the calories should be made up for each child. I will repeat them for you now.

BEST FOUNDATION FOR EACH DAY FOR EACH CHILD

(Also best for each adult)
Part 1—Protective Foods:
1 1/2 pints of milk, at least.
1 full cupful of vegetables (especially the green leaf vegetables). Part of them raw.
1 cupful of fruit, part fresh, if possible.
1 to 2 ounces of high protein food (flesh foods, eggs, cheese).
Part 2—Energy Foods:
Cereals, including whole-grain breads; rice, potatoes, macaroni and similar foods, simple desserts.
Fats in the form of butter, cream, egg yolks and nuts.

Diet Eating

Mrs. J.—Diet eating may be a sign of a deficiency of mineral salts in the child's diet, but not necessarily so. It may be simply a habit, but it is an exceedingly pernicious habit and you must break your child of it, even if you have to put cardboard cuffs on its elbows so it cannot get its hands to its mouth.

Finger Nail Biting. It is not unusual for children sometimes during their careers to start nibbling on their finger nails, and the time to break it is right at the start, as with any bad habit. If the child is too young to reason with, then a smart slap on the hand every time it puts the hand to the mouth, may do the work.

Household Hints

MENU HINT

The months following Christmas are usually hard on one's pocket-book. All sorts of bills come due and the after-the-holiday sales are a constant temptation, as linen and other household supplies and clothes often need replenishing. We had better economize in our food supply, if we can do so without sacrificing food values and attractiveness.

Stewed Fruit

TODAY'S RECIPES

Creamed Tuna Fish—Pour the oil of a small can of tuna fish flake the fish. Melt a tablespoon of butter in a saucepan, mix with it three tablespoons of flour, and gradually add one pint of milk. Stir until smooth and boiling, add tuna fish, season with salt and pepper and serve over the riced potatoes.

Oatmeal Cookies—Cream three-fourths cup butter or other shortening with one cup sugar, add two well-beaten eggs. Sift three-fourths teaspoon soda in two cups flour, add one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, two cups uncooked rolled oats and one cup raisins, or half raisins and half nut meats sprinkled with flour. Drop on buttered tins and bake.

SUGGESTIONS

Efficiency With Electric Washer. Do not use too much water in the washing machine. It often reduces its efficiency. Notice the water line, and also be careful not to overload the machine with clothes.

Do Not Soak Meat

Do not soak any kind of fresh meat before cooking. It draws out the juices. Wipe it with a damp cloth to clean before cooking.

CLEVER FELLOW

A neighbor wrote a letter to his girl (touring Spain) and one to his rival. He sent the letters to the box with a prep. Later... "You mailed my letters?" "Sure," but you made a mistake—you put the two cent stamp on the Spanish letter, and the five cent stamp on the other." "So you added more stamps, I hope?" "Don't think I'm so stupid. I just changed addresses."

Usually f. n. bitters bite because the nails are rough, so they should be kept smooth. A trip to a manicurist is often instrumental in instilling pride in the hands and stopping the habit. If it is too young for this, then the cuffs added or the dirt-eaters should be used.

Finger nail biting, as the dirt-eating habit, may be very harmful, and is a habit that may hang on to adult life. It is exceedingly disagreeable both to the biter and the onlooker.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Official Washington's feeling toward the war between the Standard Oil Company and the Royal Dutch Shell Oil companies, is somewhat the same as the United States government's feeling toward the World War, in its early stages.

For quite a while the World War didn't appear to be any skin off OUR nose. In fact, we gained by it—in fancy prices from Europe.

Just so with the oil war—cheap gas for our flivvers.

Yet nobody with a lick of sense could miss seeing, from the first, that the World War was dangerous even to bystanders. Ditto this oil war. In so big a rookus, nobody's corns are safe.

The Standard and the Royal Dutch tell conflicting stories, but this much we know—

Both were selling oil in the Orient in gentlemanly competition. They sold Russian oil here, because of the comparatively short haul, especially to India.

According to the Standard—Sir Henri Deterding, head of the Royal Dutch, tried to hog the Orient market by getting a buying monopoly from Russia.

But Russia wouldn't give it to him, whereupon Sir Henri got the British government (the British government is heavily interested in his company, despite its Dutch name) to break relations with the Soviet folks, thinking thus to put the screws on—at the same time urging the Standard also to quit buying in Russia, though he was aiming to thimble-rig the Standard. According to Sir Henri—He quit buying from the Soviets because they're a menace to the human race and the standard hadn't the decency to imitate him.

At all events, somehow the Royal Dutch was ejected out of its Russian oil supply and the Standard still has one.

Consequently the Standard could profitably sell oil for less, in the Orient than the Royal Dutch. Sir Henri warned the Standard not to do it but the Standard did it.

In retaliation, Sir Henri cut Royal Dutch prices in India, so low that the Standards admits it's losing around $4,000,000 yearly there, to meet his figures, but the Royal Dutch, minus Russian oil, is estimated to be losing more than three times that much—in that market alone.

The Royal Dutch is a large company—nearly as formidable as the Standard of New York—but a million a month, at 3 to 1, is expensive fighting.

So Sir Henri began looking around for other markets where he could do some cutting—a loss to the Royal Dutch, no doubt, but a loss on a trifle more favorable terms, as compared with the Standard. Among other places, he's begun it in this country—for the Royal Dutch has immense oil-land holdings in America, and can compete here, on at least even terms, with the Standard.

Next, it's taken for granted, he'll begin hostilities in other markets—wherever his source of supply will enable him to fight at an advantage.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

STRONG WILL ONLY ANSWER

What can be done when a man drinks, loses his job and fails to support his family? Nothing does any permanent good but the resolve of the man himself to stop drinking and the will to stop. As to this latter, no one but those who have the drink craving and have fought to overcome it know what it means. Incidentally, I often wonder why men and women will promiscuously serve drinks in their homes when they never know how terrible a temptation it may prove to some one who is trying desperately to overcome the habit.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: Tell me, please, is there anyone to whom I can go for aid in forcing my husband to stop drinking so that he can keep a position and support our three children?"

You can find out where your husband gets the liquor and report to the police. Despair. You can also take your case to court and ask to have your husband compelled to support the children. The only real reform must come from his desire to stop drinking. A friend who had fought the fight and won might be the greatest help to him—and your sympathetic co-operation.

"Despair." "Billie's" and "Betty's" letters complain of the boys who pet. Betty says she "hasn't many boy friends because I do not believe in petting." Billie and her friend had made a bargain that she would stop smoking if he would stop drinking. Now she is told that, while she kept her part of the bargain he has been drinking again. What shall she do?

If it is true, Billie, all you can do is to tell him that he has broken his word and you can no longer trust him. He does not deserve a good friend, does he?

"Needing a Pal" declares that she and her girl friend have a good time together, but don't attract the boys. They want help. I hardly know what to advise girls. Girls of your age are offered a little self-conscious when with the boys, and the boys feel the same. It will wear off and you'll have plenty of boy friends in time.

"A letter from 'Real Pal' in your column pleased me very much," writes "Answer to Real Pal." "I may seem quite a bit hard to some girls, but I think that a girl that allows a boy to pet and kiss her is one of the biggest cheats of today, because she cheats herself. The moment a boy finds a girl will pet he doubts her in everything. It kills all chance for romance." That's putting it strong girls.

"Anxious to Know" and "J. P." are interested in the club for the lonely eye. They want one started right away and are willing to help.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

THE HERMIT

Whitie, the cat, was a very aristocratic cat indeed, and not at all sociable. He had no use at all for his brother and sister who lived up at the brown farmhouse. "House cats," he called them, sneeringly, whenever he accepted their invitation to dine from their saucer of milk or to join them in a nap by the fire.

Not Whitie, no indeed. Whitie was wise and strong and a fighter and he didn't need to depend upon any human to make it easy for him. He was quite well able to take care of himself and to prove it he insisted upon taking a large house by the season and living alone. Once in a while undesirable tenants did succeed in quartering themselves in a corner of his establishment, but when Whitie found it out he was furious and paid them back for their foolishness by eating them up.

It didn't matter a bit that these new tenants were tiny and quite and didn't bother him a bit. The very minute that one of them poked his wee nose a trifle too far out of his front door—a hole in the hay mow—Whitie, who had been lying in wait for just this thing to happen (and sometimes for hours), would switch his tail with rage, his whiskers would twitch eagerly.

Pounce! Cuff! The foolish little mouse found himself helpless in the claws of the great white cat. For Whitie, the aristocrat, lived in the hay barn in the meadow and the unwelcome residents were tramp field mice who braved the unknown terrors of a strange barn in order to find a bit of warmth and comfort from the bitter cold of the frozen fields.

Although he pretended not to care at all Whitie knew very well that he was most unpopular. Of course the Two-Legs did not realize it but the Two-Legs frightened him. He could not understand why they wanted to run their paws over his sleek coat. Because he couldn't understand he believed that if he let them they would hurt him. So every time that one of the Humans came near he would run out his claws and spit.

And the Humans who didn't know that the cat was afraid, thought that Whitie was just ugly. Whitie's own relatives didn't like him because they knew he despised their lazy ways of living. The mice and the rats and the birds hated Whitie for it was on them he dined when he could. At for the chickens and the roosters and the ducks they clucked and crowed and cackled every time they caught sight of Whitie's arching back and gleaming eyes, for they never were quite able to assure themselves he would not sink his sharp nails into their soft flesh the minute they turned their backs.

Old Dobin, the horse, and Spot, the cow, were two goodnatured creatures, but they didn't have much that was good to say for Whitie. The cat was always appearing at the most unexpected times and never had a good word for either of them. If he greeted them at all he was apt to give a disagreeable "meow" that meant "Get out of my way and let me pass of I will scratch your nose."

But Whitie's most remorseless enemies were the Crows. They did their best to make him pay dearly for the nestlings that he sneaked from under the very nose of the mothers of the tribe. And the crows could punish him best in the winter, when, because he did nothing for nobody, nobody would do anything for him, and Whitie was obliged to forage for his food in the open where no friendly leaves to hide him from sight.

BOYS AND ADVENTURE

A picture was given of the boy heart of America a few days ago, when 682 boys of the public schools of Belleville, New Jersey, were asked who they would like to be if they had to be someone else than themselves. Of these boys, 363 said they would like to be Col. Lindbergh, while only 110 wanted to be President Coolidge, 66 wished to be Henry Ford, 27 Thomas A. Edison, and 12 General Pershing.

The ideals of boys undergo rapid changes. At first they are simple. Many boys used to dream of being railroad sectionmen, because they were giving control of a handcar which they could operate up and down the tracks and thus get away from home. But these boys would want an automobile or an airplane now.

Many boys used to dream of being Indian fighters. Since the Indian fighting business slowed down, they are ready to go on for anything that is novel and adventurous.

The performance of thrilling and daring feats looks more attractive to the average boy than great political or financial success. The boy world doesn't probably admire Lindy so much because of his wonderful poise of character and service to science, as because he has done things that take very rare courage.

This longing for adventure leads many boys to disregard the excellent advice of their parents, and strike off far from achieving anything worth doing, yet the adventurous spirit of youth sometimes leads it to do daredevil things that bring it to grief.

The boy who is longing for some great adventure would better take hold and see if he can conquer the little difficulties of every day life. After he masters them, it will be time enough for him to start out to bring the world to his feet.

It is in the capable direction of this adventurous spirit that the Boy Scout organization has distinguished itself, being of tremendous value in the lives of hundreds of thousands of youths.

KILLS HOPE OF NAVY LIMITATION

The decision of the United States to build its navy to a parity with that of Great Britain "definitely ends all serious discussions of limitations of armaments in Europe," in the opinion of Frank H. Simonds, noted war correspondent and authority on international affairs.

"The British advocacy of its great naval program based upon its requirements at Geneva and the American adoption of a vast naval construction program based on its conception of its own needs for security make it impossible for either American or British voices to urge land disarmament at Geneva," Mr. Simonds points out.

Hopes held for the success of gradual disarmament program of the League of Nations have been dissipated by the American plan, Mr. Simonds believes, because the contemplated weapon of the League, the blockade, would be ineffective against American shipping in any new conflict.

Although he expresses the opinion that "we are at the beginning of a long period of Anglo-American strain," Mr. Simonds sees no possibility of British-American war clouds forming as a result of the newly announced naval program. To the contrary, he says, the British, who until now have rested secure in the belief that their scattered possessions entitled them to naval supremacy, recognize American potential superiority and will rely upon diplomatic conciliation.

The Way of the World

MAN, NOT JOB

Never make up your mind about a man because of the job he holds. All sorts of circumstances may account for his job. Harry Luft, New York strong man, can tear two thick telephone directories in pieces at the same time, and he has towed a two-ton automobile with his teeth. But his steady job is working in a millinery shop. A good man may have a poor job, temporarily, and have a good reason for it.

JUST FIGURES

Boy babies are worth $9,000 and girls $4,600. So says Dr. Louis L. Dublin, who figures statistics for a life insurance company. He says the preventable deaths of 120,000 babies each year in this country mean an annual loss of $750,000,000. Some figures are just figures. Sound in theory they mean little practically. Ask any father or mother whether the boy baby is worth $9,000 and the girl baby $4,600. What's the answer? There is no answer.

CAMELS AND MOTORS

The motor car has smoother over the camel tracks in the desert. It used to take 22 days from Damascus to Bagdad by camel. Now it takes 30 hours by automobile.

"Hey, where you think you're going?" shouts the young sheik behind the wheel. The traveler can visit the remote parts of the earth with vastly more convenience than ever before—but with less thrill. The land of adventure is fast being cut up into city lots all over the earth.

CHANGED WORLD

Church goes, after the Sunday morning service, may well give themselves to recreational sports like tennis and golf. So says Bishop Manning, of the Episcopal church. It's a changed world. No such talk issued from the pulpit when some folks you know were boys and girls. It's a more understanding world, too. We have all learned some few things. We have learned that a boy cannot be tied to the front porch on Sunday afternoon and forced to be good. He may be made to go through the motions of being good. Today's young people are smart. They have to be sold ideas, and those ideas must be honestly and sensibly presented. They are willing to accept a good thing if you can prove it's good.

OF A

New Yorker

—By—

BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—President Coolidge, according to a certain Broadway wisecracker, is going to change October 31st to "Hal-levine," in honor of New York's own transatlantic flier.

One restaurant, member of a chain of eat-and-run establishments, gives away a packet of cigarettes with each meal. This custom has an undoubted attraction for the small clerk or stenographer who needs to count the pennies before ordering.

Variety reports that a little girl who had been to the big city was asked what New York was famous for, when she arrived back home. "For its speakeasies," the child is alleged to have said. And experts say that's no childish prattle, either.

There is in Greenwich Village an apartment house containing eight one-room homes for "indigent artists." The building is known roundabout as "Twin Peaks," and it was erected under the patronage of Mr. Otto Kahn for the benefit of poverty-stricken painters and writers. Unfortunately, the flat rent for $70 a month, which is not cheap, according to certain standards, but according to the New York idea in that particular neighborhood, is at least reasonable. However, the ideal of the founder is not being entirely realized, since one person I know who lives in Twin Peaks is neither indigent nor an artist. He is a reporter on a tabloid and he makes expensive account work for him.

The newspapers make quite a to-do about a new machine, the "sodamat," installed at 1517 Broadway. The contraption mixes any one of twelve different flavors before the customers' eyes, and then slides the drink out in a sanitary cup. All for a nickel.

Panorama of New York . . .

The night watchman at the Majestic theatre, who complains about the four-pound lantern he carries, is Joe Demato, former circus strong man. . . . Waiters at the big hotels are trained in the art of carving by being given practice dummies made of dough. . . . Galoshes, I observe, have departed in favor of fur-topped boots. . . . An out-of-town guest at a banquet at the Astor wisecracked thus: "I never had such delicious salt and pepper." . . . A drunken acrobat, leaping about South Ferry station, last week, hit one of the policemen in pursuit. According to the classic adage, that must be news.

It appears that prohibition agents have finally procured a successful method of clamping down on the night club. The device is one of ancient usage, having been used on stills in the south. Instead of raiding the place for violation of the prohibition act, Volstead's minions now come armed with a search-and-seizure warrant. In this way the offense consists in the night club on which no tax has been paid to the government. A pint of liquor on the premises is sufficient to secure such a conviction, and that same charge allows the government agents to seize every bit of property in the place. When the Cheez Morgan was raided in this way before New Year's eve, the officers tore down expensive drapes, wrecked furniture with axes, and in every way possible ruined the place. What's more, the law protects such action. A few more such raids, each of which destroys enormously valuable furnishings, and the night clubs will indeed be forced to obey the Eighteenth amendment.

Driving through the Bronx from New York to Mamaroneck, I have stopped several times at small shops to ask for cigarettes when the latter were not on display. In every instance, the proprietor would gaze at me solemnly and then produce a packet from some nook out of view. Of course, city inspectors are continually on the lookout for unlicensed vendors of tobacco. Evidently I did not bear the suspicious stamp of the law's enforcer.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

One of the most famous merchants in the United States, seated at our table, chanced to remark that he has never owned an automobile.

As he is evidently the only man in the country who can afford an automobile and doesn't have one, I asked him to explain. "I'd rather taxicabs," he said, "and have one less possession to bother about. All my life I have tried to keep my mind free from non-essentials. Even when I was a youngster, making $2 a week, I never counted my laundry. Perhaps I have lost a few collars, or even a shirt or two, by not keeping more careful track of them. But I'm quite sure that I have made far more than the value of such trifles by concentrating my thoughts to problems of greater importance."

For an hour I sat on deck, listening to the widow of one of the most celebrated singers of recent years, talking about his wonderful traits of character. Somehow, it renewed my faith in humanity to hear a widow, already engaged to be married again, so frankly full of deepest admiration for the spouse that is gone.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

What Constitutes a Basic Facial Treatment

When you come to a beauty salon, the first thing the operator does is to ask you to remove all clothing from around your neck and shoulders. Then she pins a towel around your bust so your will be protected against soiling from the cream, and so she will have perfect freedom to work well down your chest and back. Then she smooths back your hair and pins a towel around your head. It is turned under slightly at the edge, drawn firmly over your ears and pinned in back, taking care that no stray ends of hair are exposed on your temples or around your ears. When you are preparing for your home massage, it is a good idea to roll the ends of the towel up away from your neck and pin them neatly on top of your head. This also makes a neat and becoming head-dress in case anyone should drop in on you unexpectedly, or if members of your family are around.

The second step is the diagnosis of your skin, an examination of texture and of defects that should be remedied. This examination determines what kind of cream and lotions will be used. The first cream to be applied is the cleansing cream.

To apply the cream, dip your fingers in the jar and distribute the substance well on your forehead, cheeks and chin. By the very nature of its purpose you must use plenty of cleansing cream. Stating in its use is just like trying to wash in an insufficient supply of water—you simply will not get results. Work the cream into the skin of your face with sweeping circular movement always using an upward lift. All the up strokes are firm, the down strokes light. Cream your face and neck thoroughly, in the cranial area around your nose and eyes, all the way to your ears, even on the lobes of your ears. Stroke down on your neck, grasping the chin firmly in the palm of the hand, bringing the cream well down on the chest and back and out on your shoulders.

In removing cream, nothing is more thorough, dainty nor easily disposed of than thin, silky squares of cleansing tissue. They are used almost universally now instead of a towel or a bit of cloth. Follow the same general rules, up on the face and down on the neck, in removing cream as you did in applying it.

The next step is the application of a stimulating, skin clearing cream—one that animates and activates the circulation. Smooth on a thin film of such cream and do not massage it. After ten or twenty minutes, remove it with cleansing tissues and apply your skin-tonic; one with astringent qualities, mild or stronger, depending on the texture of your skin. Most women prefer an astringent of a milky consistency, for it gives the skin a particularly fresh-looking surface and serves as a powder foundation, or oftentimes, even as a finish for the woman who does not want to use powder around the house. The treatment finishes of course, with the application of your powder and rouge.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS

Counting Children's Calories. Is it necessary to have a knowledge of the caloric value of foods to compute children's diets?

No, if the child is normal weight and is gaining normally. In other words, if it is in perfect health. But if the child is overweight or underweight, you must have this knowledge, whether the condition is due to incorrect diet. (Of course a diet may be correct in the number of calories or total energy foods, but still be very incorrect in the contents of vitamins and mineral elements).

However, you should have a caloric knowledge of food anyway, because everybody should have a fundamental knowledge of dietetics, and you can't have this unless you know caloric values. This knowledge is not difficult at all, because they are many servings that are approximately 100 Calories each. For instance, a full slice of bread, one-half inch thick, is 100 C. A pat of butter, equivalent to a level tablespoonful, is 100 C. A big egg is 100 C. (Ordinary sized egg 75 to 80 C.) 5 ounces of whole milk is 100 C. A scant cup of oatmeal is 100 C. A full apple, or big orange, is 100 C. Most textbooks on dietetics give 100 C. lists of foods.

In yesterday's paper, I gave you Sherman's table of the caloric needs of children, and I called your attention to the fact that undernourished children and superactive children may need over twice the number of calories daily that the average child consumes.

There is a daily fundamental diet from which the calories should be made up for each child. I will repeat them for you now.

BEST FOUNDATION FOR EACH DAY FOR EACH CHILD

(Also best for each adult)
Part 1—Protective Food:
1 1/2 pints of milk, at least.
1 full cupful of vegetables (especially the green leaf vegetables). Part of them raw.
1 cupful of fruit, part fresh, if possible.
1 to 2 ounces of high protein food (fish, foods, eggs, cheese).
Part 2—Energy Foods:
Cereals, including whole-grain breads; rice, potatoes, macaroni and similar foods, simple desserts.

Fats in the form of butter, cream, egg yolks and nuts.

Dirt Eating. It is not unusual for children sometimes during their careers to start nibbling on their finger nails, and the time to break it is right at the start, as with any bad habit. If the child is too young to reason with, then a smart slap on the hand every time it puts the hand to the mouth, may do the work.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

The months following Christmas are usually hard on one's pocket-book. All sorts of bills come due, and the after-the-holiday sales are a constant temptation, as linen and other household supplies and clothes often need replenishing. We had better economize in our food supply, if we can do so without sacrificing food values and attractiveness.

Riced Potatoes. Creamed Tuna Fish. Cabbage Apple Salad. Stewed Fruit. Oatmeal Cookies. Tea.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Creamed Tuna Fish.—Pour the oil off a small can of tuna fish flake the fish. Melt a tablespoon of butter in a saucepan, mix with three tablespoons of flour, and gradually add one pint of milk. Stir until smooth and boiling, add tuna fish, season with salt and pepper and serve over the riced potatoes.

Oatmeal Cookies.—Cream three-fourths cup butter or other shortening with one cup sugar, add two well-beaten eggs. Sift three-fourths teaspoon soda in two cups flour, add one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, two cups uncooked rolled oats and one cup raisins, or half raisins and half nut meats sprinkled with flour. Drop on buttered tins and bake.

SUGGESTIONS

Efficiency With Electric Washer. Do not use too much water in the washing machine. It often reduces its efficiency. Notice the water line, and also be careful not to overload the machine with clothes.

Do Not Soak Meat

Do not soak any kind of fresh meat before cooking. It draws out the juices. Wipe it with a damp cloth to clean before cooking.

CLEVER FELLOW

A senior wrote a letter to his girl (touring Spain) and one to his rival. He sent the letters to the box with a prep. Later . . . "You mailed my letters?" "Sure, but you made a mistake—you put the two cent stamp on the Spanish letter, and the five cent stamp on the other." "So you added more stamps, I hope?" "Don't think I'm so stupid. I just changed addresses."

Usually f. n. bitters bite because the nails are rough, so they should be kept smooth. A trip to a manicurist is often instrumental in instilling pride in the hands and stopping the habit. If it is too young for this, then the cuffs advised or the dirt-eaters should be used.

Finger nail biting, as the dirt-eating habit, may be very harmful, and is a habit that may hang on to adult life. It is exceedingly disagreeable both to the biter and the onlooker.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Official Washington's feeling toward the war between the Standard Oil Company and the Royal Dutch Shell Oil companies, is somewhat the same as the United States government's feeling toward the World War, in its early stages.

For quite a while the World War didn't appear to be any skin off OUR nose. In fact, we gained by it—in fancy prices from Europe.

Just so with the oil war—cheap gas for our flivvers. Yet nobody with a lick of sense could miss seeing, from the first, that the World War was dangerous even to bystanders. Ditto this oil war. In so big a rookus, nobody's corns are safe.

The Standard and the Royal Dutch tell conflicting stories, but this much we know—

Both were selling oil in the Orient in gentlemanly competition. They sold Russian oil here, because of the comparatively short haul, especially to India.

According to the Standard—Sir Henri Deterding, head of the Royal Dutch, tried to hog the Orient market by getting a buying monopoly from Russia.

But Russia wouldn't give it to him, whereupon Sir Henri got the British government (the British government is heavily interested in his company, despite its Dutch name) to break relations with the Soviet folks, thinking thus to put the screws on—at the same time urging the Standard also to quit buying in Russia, though he was aiming to thimble-rig the Standard.

According to Sir Henri—He quit buying from the Soviets because they're a menace to the human race and the standard hadn't the decency to imitate him.

At all events, somehow the Royal Dutch was ejected out of its Russian oil supply and the Standard still has one.

Consequently the Standard could profitably sell oil for less, in the Orient than the Royal Dutch. Sir Henri warned the Standard not to do it but the Standard did it.

In retaliation, Sir Henri cut Royal Dutch prices, in India, so low that the Standards admits it's losing around $4,000,000 yearly there, to meet his figures, but the Royal Dutch, minus Russian oil, is estimated to be losing more than three times that much—in that market alone.

The Royal Dutch is a large company—nearly as formidable as the Standard of New York—but a million a month, at 3 to 1, is expensive fighting.

So Sir Henri began looking around for other markets where he could do some cutting—at a loss to the Royal Dutch, no doubt, but a loss on a trifle more favorable terms, as compared with the Standard. Among other places, he's begun it in this country—for the Royal Dutch has immense oilland holdings in America, and can compete here, on at least even terms, with the Standard.

Next, it's taken for granted, he'll begin hostilities in other markets—wherever his source of supply will enable him to fight at an advantage.

Living and Loving

STRONG WILL ONLY ANSWER

What can be done when a man drinks, loses his job and fails to support his family? Nothing does any permanent good but the resolve of the man himself to stop drinking and the will to stop. As to this latter, no one but those who have the drink craving and have fought to overcome it know what it means. Incidentally, I often wonder why men and women will promiscuously serve drinks in their homes when they never know how terrible a temptation it may prove to some one who is trying desperately to overcome the habit.

"Dear Mr. Lee: Tell me, please, is there anyone to whom I can go for aid in forcing my husband to stop drinking so that he can keep a position and support our three children?"

You can find out where your husband gets the liquor and report to the police. Despair. You can also take your case to court and ask to have your husband compelled to support the children. The only real reform must come from his desire to stop drinking. A friend who had fought the fight and won might be the greatest help to him—and your sympathetic co-operation.

"Billie's" and "Betty's" letters complain of "boys who eat." Betty says she "hates it" and boys because I do not believe in petting." Billie and her friend had made a bargain that she would stop smoking if he would stop drinking. Now she is told that, while she kept her part of the bargain he has been drinking again. What shall she do? If it is true, Billie, all you can do is to tell him that he has broken his word and you can no longer trust him. He does not deserve a good friend, does he?

"Needing a Pal" declares that she and her girl friend have a good time together, but don't attract the boys. They want help. I hardly know what to advise. Girls of your age are offered a little self-conscious when with the boys and the boys feel the same. It will wear off and you'll have plenty of boy friends in time.

"A letter from 'Real Pal' in your column pleased me very much," writes "Answer to Real Pal." "I may seem quite a bit hard to some girls, but I think that a girl that allows a boy to pet and kiss her is one of the biggest cheats of today, because she cheats herself. The moment a boy finds a girl will pet he doubts her in everything. It kills all chance for romance." That's putting it strong girls.

"Anxious to Know" and "J. P." are interested in the club for the lonely idea. They want one started right away and are willing to help.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

THE HERMIT

Whitie, the cat, was a very aristocratic cat, indeed, and not at all sociable. He had no use at all for his brother and sister who lived up at the brown farmhouse. "House cats" he called them, sneeringly, whenever he of them at all and never once did he accept their invitation to dine from their saucer of milk or to join them in a nap by the fire.

Not Whitie, no indeed. Whitie was wise and strong and a fighter and he didn't need to depend upon any human to make it easy for him. He was quite well able to take care of himself and to prove it he insisted upon making a large house by the season and living alone. Once in a while undesirable tenants did succeed in quartering themselves in a corner of his establishment, but when Whitie found it out he was furious and paid them back for their foolishness by casting them up the house by the season and living alone. CENTRAL WILL MEET ANCIENT RIVALS IN WEEK END CONTESTS

Central High School's basketball team has an opportunity of avenging two of last season's basketball defeats in a pair of games this week-end.

Xenia will meet Middletown High at the local gym Friday night and Eaton High at Eaton Saturday night. Both schools gave the Blue and White's 1926-27 quietest neat drubbings.

The Middletown-Xenia contest should be exciting. Middletown has lost but one game this year, and that to Springfield High.

Xenia was also defeated by Springfield by a slightly smaller margin than Middletown. Eaton, with an array of veteran stars back from last year, is a formidable foe and will have the additional advantage of playing on its own, new, large floor.

Coach Kolb's lads hope to keep their present winning streak of five games intact and to that end are striving to become perfect in all departments of play in practice this week.

Poul shooting in particular is being stressed. The team has made an average number of points as a result of its chances from the free throw line in past games, but is trying to raise this percentage.

ST. BRIGID OUTFIT LOSES TO CATHOLIC HIGH FIVE OF PIQUA

Clearly playing "above its head," the Catholic High School basketball quintet of Piqua easily defeated St. Brigid High School of Xenia 34 to 7 in a game on the Piqua floor Tuesday night.

The St. Brigid sharpshooters were slightly off color and missed many shots. On the other hand the Catholic High aggregation shot with remarkable accuracy.

This contest constituted the "big" game on the season's schedule for St. Brigid away from home. Since a home-and-home series was arranged, a return game with Piqua will be played at Xenia in two weeks.

Ernst, accurate-shooting forward, was guarded closely by the St. Brigid star, succeeded in breaking away for five of his team's points. Neville killed the other two counters. Killen, pivot-man, played a good floor game.

St. Brigid's next game will be played Thursday, February 9, against St. Mary's High School of Urbana at Central High School gymnasium.

St. Brigid has now recorded two victories against three defeats this season.

Bowling

The Greene County Lumber Co., bowling team, present leaders in the Recreation League, had its margin whittled to five full games by dropping two out of three games to the third-place Lang Transfers in a league match Tuesday night.

The champions won their first game by fifty pins but lost the second by seventy-seven pins. The third and deciding contest was a battle royal, the Transfers eventually winning out by a two-pin margin, 842 to 840.

Lee Regan led the attack for the winners with 576 followed by Whittington with 547. Blackburn topped the champions with 561 while Swindler was runner up with 557. Box score:

TAKE SALTS IF RHEUMATISM IS BOTHERING YOU

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Salts to Get Rid of Toxic Acid.

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat no sweets for awhile, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid or body waste matter, and is often generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this toxic acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove waste and stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

Sport Ritticisms by BILL RITT

Jack Dempsey, Hollywood hotel owner, has started training again. That's a sure sign his hotel business will have to get along by itself about next September.

You remember Dempsey. He was the first man to discover that four and ten equal ten in Chicago.

Dempsey also is the only fellow in the world who made more money and friends as a "has been" than an "is."

As a champ Dempsey used to be so ferocious he didn't have to knock out his opponent. All he did was frown and they faint.

Jack bounced the boys so hard they were never the same any more. Look at Carpenter. He thinks he's a dancer now.

And Looie Firpo. He went back to South America. All you have to do is read the Nicaragua news to realize that a man who does that is goofy.

Then the movies reformed Jack's features. He became so handsome Gene Tunney failed to recognize the great champ and whipped him.

BLACKMAILER FALLS INTO TRAP

When 17-year-old Andrew Henneken, Del Monte, Cal., caddy, tried to get $1,000 in bills from Mrs. R. G. Tunison (above), Newark, N. J., and Chicago society woman, detectives dressed up as women and trapped the youngster in the act of taking the money away from the golf links.

PENITENTIARY PRISONER MAY BE FREED; CASE IS REVERSED

Conviction of William Cummings, this city, in Common Pleas Court on an indictment for a statutory offense was reversed by the Greene County Court of Appeals Tuesday because of an alleged erroneous charge to the jury by Judge R. L. Gowdy. The case was remanded for a new trial.

Cummings is now serving a term of from one to ten years in Ohio State Penitentiary.

Attorney F. W. Dunkle, defense counsel, asserted that in view of the reversal of the trial court's conviction, he may make an effort to obtain Cummings' release from the penitentiary on habeas corpus proceedings.

Cummings, at the time of the trial, admitted calling at the home of Mrs. Goldie Gorman and that the offense took place at her home, but denied any circumstances of force and alleged previous cases of intimacy with the prosecuting witness.

He also claimed the trouble arose over the payment of money.

Upon trial of the case the trial court properly charged the jury that the offense must be made out by the state beyond a reasonable doubt, the higher court ruled. And then in one paragraph the court stated:

"On the other hand, the jury ought not to condemn unless the evidence removes from your minds all reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, and you would venture to act upon it in a matter of the highest concern or importance to your own interests."

The appellate court is of the opinion that the paragraph in question is erroneous as it "places or implies that the burden was upon the defendant to remove from the minds of the jury all reasonable doubt."

"It is true," the decision added, "that both before and after this paragraph occurs in the charge there are paragraphs tending to establish the correct law that the burden is upon the state to prove the state's case beyond a reasonable doubt, but it is also clearly established that where a proposition of law is given correctly and also erroneously in the charge and there is nothing in the charge which would correct the erroneous charge and it is impossible to ascertain which charge the jury followed,

CENTRAL WILL MEET ANCIENT RIVALS IN WEEK END CONTESTS

Central High School's basketball team has an opportunity of avenging two of last season's basketball defeats in a pair of games this week-end.

Xenia will meet Middletown High at the local gym Friday night and Eaton High at Eaton Saturday night. Both schools gave the Blue and White's 1926-27 quietest neat drubbings.

The Middletown-Xenia contest should be exciting. Middletown has lost but one game this year, and that to Springfield High. Xenia was also defeated by Springfield by a slightly smaller margin than Middletown.

Eaton, with a array of veteran stars back from last year, is a formidable foe and will have the additional advantage of playing on its own, new, large floor.

Coach Kolb's lads hope to keep their present winning streak of five games intact, and to that end are striving to become perfect in all departments of play in practice this week.

Foul shooting in particular is being stressed. The team has made an average number of points as a result of its chances from the free throw line in past games, but is trying to raise this percentage.

CENTRAL SECONDS PLAY CAESARCREEK

Xenia Central High School's second team has arranged a basketball game with Caesarcreek High School on the Caesar floor Friday night.

HER BLACKMAILER FALLS INTO TRAP

When 17-year-old Andrew Henneken, Del Monte, Cal., caddy, tried to get $1,000 in bills from Mrs. R. G. Tunison (above), Newark, N. J., and Chicago society woman, detectives dressed up as women and trapped the youngster in the act of taking the money away from the golf links.

PENITENTIARY PRISONER MAY BE FREED; CASE IS REVERSED

Conviction of William Cummings, this city, in Common Pleas Court on an indictment for a statutory offense was reversed by the Greene County Court of Appeals Tuesday because of an alleged erroneous charge to the jury by Judge R. L. Gowdy. The case was remanded for a new trial.

Cummings is now serving a term of from one to ten years in Ohio State Penitentiary.

Attorney F. W. Dunkle, defense counsel, asserted that in view of the reversal of the trial court's conviction, he may make an effort to obtain Cummings' release from the penitentiary on habeas corpus proceedings.

Cummings, at the time of the trial, admitted calling at the home of Mrs. Goldie Gorman and that the offense took place at her home, but denied any circumstances of force and alleged previous cases of intimacy with the prosecuting witness.

He also claimed the trouble arose over the payment of money. Upon trial of the case the trial court properly charged the jury that the offense must be made out by the state beyond a reasonable doubt, the higher court ruled. And then in one paragraph the court stated:

"On the other hand, the jury ought not to condemn unless the evidence removes from your minds all reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, and you would venture to act upon it in a matter of the highest concern or importance to your own interests."

The appellate court is of the opinion that the paragraph in question is erroneous as it "places or implies that the burden was upon the defendant to remove from the minds of the jury all reasonable doubt."

"It is true," the decision added, "that both before and after this paragraph occurs in the charge there are paragraphs tending to establish the correct law that the burden is upon the state to prove the state's case beyond a reasonable doubt, but it is also clearly established that where a proposition of law is given correctly and also erroneously in the charge and there is nothing in the charge which would correct the erroneous charge and it is impossible to ascertain which charge the jury followed,

SALLY'S SALLIES

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. McGLONE GIBSON
WHERE DUTY ENDSIt is not always easy to decide just what position duty holds in right living. The person who always makes duty a fetish is seldom individually happy, because a slavish holding to the word must necessarily make those to whom the duty is paid selfish and unap-preciative.There has grown with civilization a well rooted idea that every one owes a life-long duty to one's mother. Yet it is very probable that every one has known mothers who have absolutely ruined the lives of their sons and daughters by exacting from them so much slavish care and useless attention that they have had no life of their own choosing.On the other hand, "children grown older" have shown an utter selfishness that has made for the greatest hardship and suffering of parents grown old and helpless.It would almost seem that as long as we are dutiful because duty is a pleasure the most we can do for those we love is not too much. But when down deep in our hearts we feel that someone is exacting from us, something that seems to us unnecessarilyarbitrary, then duty to others should be laid aside for duty to one's self.There is only one definition of duty that is necessary to follow and that was given by One who gave unto the uttermost, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," was the divine command.If one can feel in his heart that the duty asked of him is something that he himself would not ask, then it is a thing that can be righteously refused.It is because we want to possess everything and every one whom we love that makes living so hard for most of us. The mother says to herself, "I love you with a love that is like no other. You are mine, imbedded in my heart." Consequently she gives no thought to the fact that, when the child has reached maturity, he must be possession of himself.Many of us have made the word "duty" a word abhorred, because we never think of it with love.Memo: After all is said and done one's duty means only one's individual responsibility. It has nothing to do with the insistent demands of selfishness.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. McGLONE GIBSON
WHERE DUTY ENDS

It is not always easy to decide just what position duty holds in right living. The person who always makes duty a fetish is seldom individually happy, because a slavish holding to the word must necessarily make those to whom the duty is paid selfish and unappreciative.

There has grown with civilization a well rooted idea that every one owes a life-long duty to one's mother. Yet it is very probable that every one has known mothers who have absolutely ruined the lives of their sons and daughters by exacting from them so much slavish care and useless attention that they have had no life of their own choosing.

On the other hand, "children grown older" have shown an utter selfishness that has made for the greatest hardship and suffering of parents grown old and helpless.

It would almost seem that as long as we are dutiful because duty is a pleasure the most we can do for those we love is not too much. But when down deep in our hearts we feel that some one is exacting from us, something that seems to us unnecessarily arbitrary, then duty to others should be laid aside for duty to one's self.

There is only one definition of duty that is necessary to follow and that was given by One who gave unto the uttermost, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," was the divine command.

If one can feel in his heart that the duty asked of him is something that he himself would not ask, then it is a thing that can be righteously refused.

It is because we want to possess everything and every one whom we love that makes living so hard for most of us. The mother says to herself, "I love you with a love that is like no other. You are mine, imbedded in my heart." Consequently she gives no thought to the fact that, when the child has reached maturity, he must be possession of himself.

Many of us have made the word "duty" a word abused, because we never think of it with love.

Memo: After all is said and done one's duty means only one's individual responsibility. It has nothing to do with the insistent demands of selfishness.

Rex Ingram, famous American film producer, Tuesday won a libel action against the weekly publication "Tit Bits" London, and an award of damages which was turned over to charity.

The action was based upon an alleged interview in which Ingram was made to say that he intended to live as a Mohammedan and had deserted Hollywood. Through his counsel the producer denied the statements attributed to him. He said he is happily married, and, far from being tired of Hollywood, Ziegfeld interests. The production was scheduled to open in Philadelphia Monday night.

"Three Sinners," from a German play to which Al Woods just acquired the American stage rights, will be Pola Negri's next Paramount picture. Miss Negri's last picture was "The Secret Hour," soon to be released.

Jeanne Williams, winner of a Syracuse (N. Y.) beauty contest and a recent member of Ziegfeld's glorifiers, recently tricked Hollywood into believing that she was Sonia Karlov, of Russia, and subsequently was signed by Cecil B. DeMille to play the lead in one of his pictures. "If you're enough of an actress to fool Hollywood, you'll make good on the screen," the producer said.

intends to make many more films. The paper had to pay the costs of the suit.

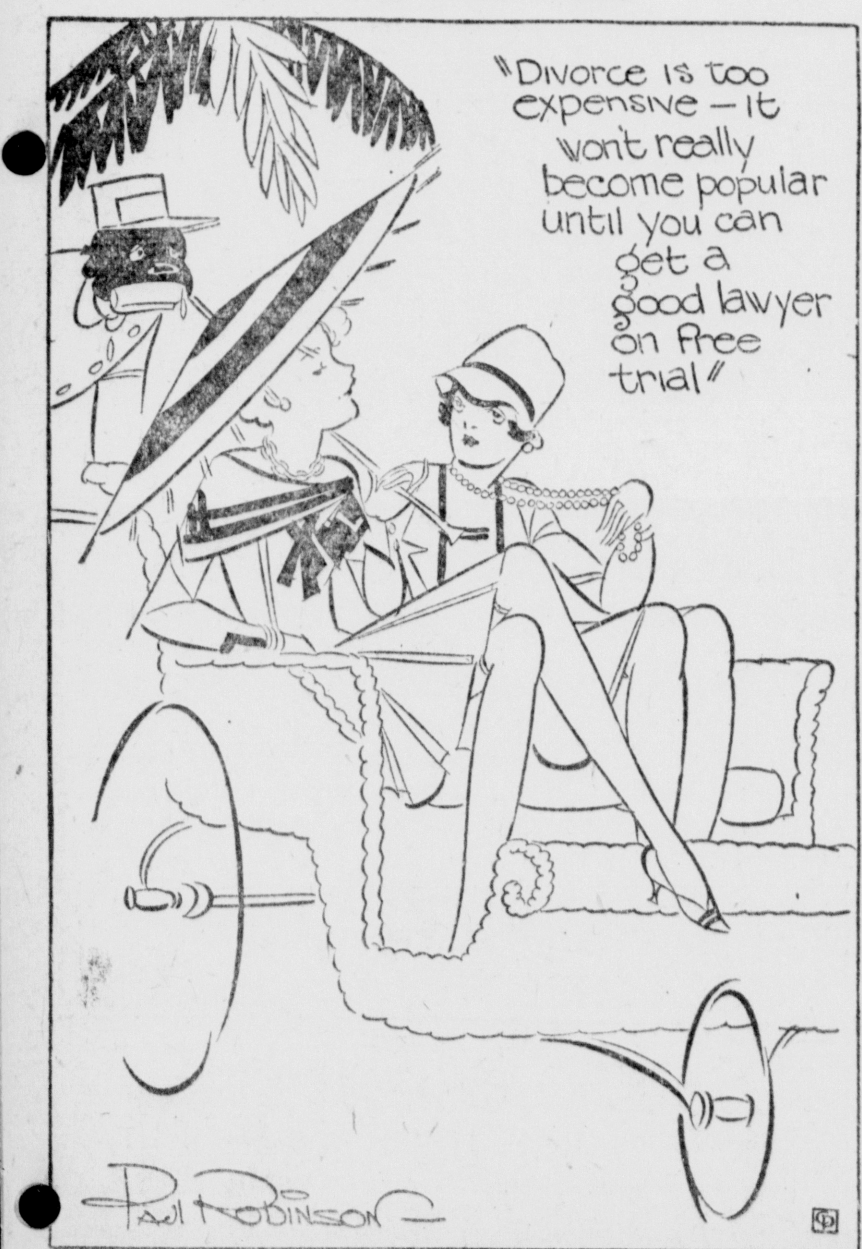

Another London paper recently printed a story saying that Ingram was living in an Italian city "in a Moslem atmosphere of mysticism" but that he intended to build a villa in North Africa, and live in it. The story was subsequently denied by Ingram's friends in London who regarded it as a joke.

Sudden illness of Eddie Cantor, musical comedy star, said to be suffering from pleurisy caused cancellation this week of the tour of the Ziegfeld "Follies." The announcement was made by the Jill Justin, ultra-modern and as lambently lovely at 20 as the Saga Lily, starts out on a moon-light night in August, accompanied by her brother Tony, to attend a harvest festival.

The two run into an automobile hold-up. Jill is kidnapped by bandits, who carry her into the hills, from where she is rescued by Jack Stuart, who takes her home.

It is the old story retold. Jack stays for a visit and remains to wed the lovely Jill. The passing of two years finds them the proud and happy parents of twin boys and a girl.

Now transpires an event destined to bring about radical changes in the lives of these people. Wand'ring through the hills back of the Justin home, Stuart stumbles onto an old abandoned mine. He also discovers what he believes to be ore-bearing rock.

It is Tony, however, in the following April, who brings in the big news. He is inveigled into the hills by a pretty girl, who tells him her name is Mary, but that she is "called Mike!" Mary, who is called "Mike" is driving a costly roadster, and she asks Tony to guide her to a place in the hills known as The Devil's Luck. Here she takes the lead and pilots him into an electrically lighted chamber. After telling him that his and Stuart's tax title mine yields an ore rich in tungsten content, Tony gets another jolt. "Mike" has disappeared right before his eyes. Five minutes later she suddenly reappears, accompanied by an aldermanic looking personage whom she introduced as "Dad" or Pat Sweeney.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XI

You would know at a glance that he was "dad" to a "Mike" or a "Pat," even if both were girls!

Tony glared at the "Mike" girl. He felt that he had a grievance, and he wanted to give it an airing, but she was too quick for him.

"This is Dad, Tony," she repeated, grinning at him. "Dad Pat, is the only living Jiggs, the one strange specimen outta captivity! And this, Daddy dear, is my friend Tony, Mister Tony Justin."

She led "the one strange specimen" forward. The "only living Jiggs" made obeisance and extended a purple paw. Mechanically, as if impelled by a force over which he had no control, Tony reached out his hand and felt the mighty digits of "the strange specimen" wrap around it. The clasp was warm and friendly, and Tony experienced an oddly soothing sensation, a sudden feeling of confidence in the man before him.

"This right glad Ol am, me bye, 'meet yez," said Pat Sweeney, his steely gray eyes looking straight into Tony's with a disconcerting steadiness. "Me gyrl, Mike—who oughter been born a bye, but wasn't—tells me she posted ye a bit about 'th raysoon ye were fetched here."

"I just gave Tony a mere outline, Dad," spoke up the girl. "You must tell him everything. But let th' first thing you tell him," she added swiftly, "be my alibi for being here."

"That you promised me this would be your last 'speculative' deal, if I would help you with it!"

She spoke with a passionate vehemence, there was no mistaking it. It was evident that "this gyrl Mike" had little liking for Pat Sweeney's speculative proclivities.

"Yis, yis, me gyrl, I'll fix that, never fear," hastily promised "the only living Jiggs." And he did.

"Ye see, me bye," he went on, with a portentous wink at Tony. "It's jist loike this: Mike here has conspired a virtuous anti-tip-pathy peror what she calls 'speculative deals.' So, jist to please her Olve promised this shall be Pat Sweeney's 'swan song' in speculation lullabies. After this I'm to confine myself to more lolly-loike pursuits!"

Again the girl interposed her voice in the proceedings.

"Tony is half sick with curiosity, Dad, as to th' manner in which I disappeared so suddenly," she said, with her brief gurgle of a laugh. Then she turned to the young man.

"When Dad started in here with his experts to make his investigations," she continued, "it was necessary to do some of th' assay work on the spot. In order to be safe from the curiosity of any person who might accidentally stumble on th' place they fixed up a small chamber leading off th' main tunnel which was closed here. This chamber is equipped as a laboratory and reached by th' secret door I used. I'll show you how that operates."

She led him across to the near wall, and reaching up placed her hand on a slightly projecting stone. Instantly a space six feet wide and six feet high turned on a pivot, giving an opening on each side of about two and a half feet. Beckoning him to follow, she stepped through the right hand opening and as he joined her she gave the huge block of stone a light push. Without the slightest noise it swung on around and into place again.

He looked around. An incandescent bulb in the ceiling showed him they stood in a short passage six feet wide. At the opposite end of this he observed an ordinary door. She opened this. Instantly the short passage was illuminated by a brilliant violet-colored light. He followed through into the chamber, a laboratory, a room some fifteen feet square, fitted with retorts and all the paraphernalia of chemistry and for assay work. In one corner was a gasoline motor which evidently furnished light for the place. Attached to the ceiling, and some eight feet apart, were two vacuum mercury lights.

"Dad has had four experts besides his friend, Mr. Guernsey, and several laborers at work here ever since last December," explained Mike. "The laborers have a camp, a log house, near the old mine entrance. The others live in town and drive back and forth by the Town Line road. None, however, work on Saturdays."

Tony Justin stared around at the strange-looking containers, the glass and steel retorts, the numerous measuring tubes. Was it real? Was he actually awake and seeing all this? Or was it just a dream?

He looked at the girl, vital, alluringly pretty, and glowing with health. Yes, he assured himself, she certainly was real. And yet, it all seemed so fantastic, so like an Arabian Night tale. Had he been told such a thing had transpired here in these hills, where he had hunted and prowled since he was a small boy, he would have said it was the prattle of a fool, or a monumetal liar.

But why, he asked himself, had this man Sweeney gone to all the trouble and expense of equipping this place, of hiring and keeping ten men, four of them, doubtless, high-salaried men, here for months? This property belonged to Jack and him. What right had Pat Sweeney to set up a laboratory on their property without their permission?

And where did they come in on the deal, anyway?

Thus did Tony cogitate, as he stood for a moment looking around the chamber. The girl must have guessed, from the expression in his eyes and on his face, something of his thoughts.

"It may seem to you, she said, breaking in on his reflections suddenly, in the direct manner that was peculiarly her own, that Pat Sweeney had a lot of nerve, taking matters into his own hands this way without consulting Mr. Stuart or you. Perhaps I'd better explain."

"In brief, Tony, this is th' situation: It is Dad's intention, providing he can make terms with Mr. Stuart and you, to have you two men truck this ore to Pittsburgh. You could have nothing to do with the loading or unloading; you would jist do the driving."

"From the most conservative figure of Bill Guernsey, the amount of ore in the pile will produce something over $200,000 worth of tungsten. It will require a month, peror what she calls 'speculative deals.' So, jist to please her Olve promised this shall be Pat Sweeney's 'swan song' in speculation lullabies. After this I'm to confine myself to more lolly-loike pursuits!"

Fifth Ave. Sets New Hair Vogue

"On the El and in the Subway, everywhere I go nowadays, I see girls here in New York who are doing their hair the new way," says pretty Leona Newell, 6250 Anna Place, Glendale, L. I., now appearing on Broadway in the "Greenwich Village Follies." "I can tell girls who are using it, by the way their hair seems to sparkle. It looks so soft too, and it's always neat. I just suit me. I haven't much time to give my hair, and it takes just a second to put a few dashes of Danderine on your brush when you use it. It certainly makes your hair look grand. Mine needs shampooing only once a month, so, since I'm using Danderine."

Danderine quickly removes that oily film from your hair and restores its natural sheen and lustre. It keeps bobbed hair in place without showing. It stops dandruff. Drug stores everywhere sell millions of the 25c bottle. A fragrant toilet necessity for the well-groomed girl.

real? Was he actually awake and seeing all this? Or was it just a dream? Not only that, but neither you nor Mr. Stuart would profit a dollar. I will explain why later.

Delivered in Pittsburgh without th' knowledge of anyone save those directly concerned, the ore will be worth easily $200,000. That is th' careful estimate, based on figures of Dad's expert. His expenses foot up to about $12,000. That includes wages for six laborers for 120 days and four experts at $20 a day. This is exclusive of their living, for which $2,000 is added.

"Cutting the last three ways leaves for each of you, Mr. Stuart, Dad and yourself, a slice amounting to something over $63,300. Payments would start with the first trip, for which you would receive $10,000 apiece on your return to Elliston with a receipt for delivery from Mr. Guernsey."
